

WHAT IS CLAIMED IS:

1. A method of placing order for product with specific composition via online shopping; comprising the steps of:

5 a logon procedure, for a purchaser to enter into the website through Internet;

an order placement procedure for opening a web page and selecting a desired purchase item, and further opening each ingredient and its price of the product with specific composition, and allowing the purchaser to specify the type and proportion of ingredients, and then the web page calculating the price for the purchaser's confirmation;

10 a package confirmation procedure, for opening a packaging web page indicating a plurality of packaging styles, patterns, and prices; after the purchaser specifying the order, the web page showing the packaging price for the purchaser's confirmation; and

15 a billing procedure, for allowing the purchaser to confirm the purchase quantity and the way of making payment, and then ending the purchase order.

20 2. The method of placing order for product with specific composition via online shopping of claim 1 further comprising a basic information establishment procedure for the purchaser to enter related personal information for the purchase of the first time.

3. The method of placing order for product with specific composition via online shopping of claim 1, wherein said logon procedure requires a password to log on.

25 4. The method of placing order for product with specific composition via online shopping of claim 1, wherein said order placement procedure returns to a previous screen for selection if confirmation is not made.

5. The method of placing order for product with specific composition via online shopping of claim 1, wherein said order placement procedure adds a web page for suggesting the proportion of the ingredients for the purchaser's choice.

6. The method of placing order for product with specific composition via online shopping of claim 1, wherein said packaging confirmation procedure has separate web pages for packaging material and pattern styles.

5           7. The method of placing order for product with specific composition via online shopping of claim 1, wherein said packaging procedure returns to a previous screen for selection if confirmation is not made.

10           8. The method of placing order for product with specific composition via online shopping of claim 1, wherein said billing procedure further comprising the confirmation of purchase quantity, total price, way of making payment, delivery date, and transportation method.